Scott Meyerhoff Joins The Intersect Group to Lead its Finance/Accounting business

ATLANTA—(May 10, 2006)—The Intersect Group, a leading provider of IT and Finance/Accounting services to the Atlanta market, announced today it has named Scott Meyerhoff as head of its Finance/Accounting business. Meyerhoff was previously CFO of Infor, an $800 million software firm, and CFO of Intercept, a $300 million public software firm prior to that. Scott started his career at Arthur Andersen as an Audit Manager.

Meyerhoff commented, “This is a really exciting time for me as I have always wanted to run a business and this gives me the chance to really leverage my prior experience. Having served Atlanta clients as an Audit Manager and then having been CFO of two high growth companies, I look forward to sharing my experience with Intersect’s clients. Additionally, I am excited to join the very experienced recruiting team that they have assembled. Having Intersect’s powerful local recruiting engine behind me will allow us to serve our clients particularly well.”

The Company’s short-term goal is to become the premier flexible professional services firm in the city for IT and Finance/Accounting. Once the Company has achieved scale in the Atlanta market it plans to roll out its offerings to other geographic markets. The Company’s business model blends high-level executives who have been CIOs and CFOs with a powerful recruiting engine that allows Intersect to solve its clients’ issues by putting a project team together or providing a staffing solution.
